Jobs to be Done | July 2019

We know that life is complicated and that people are complex. The fullness of their decision making and behavior can be confusing and deeply nuanced.

On one occasion they'll do one thing... and the next time they'll do something completely different!

We love sorting out the complexity of life and finding a way to tell human stories with empathy and beautiful simplicity. In no category is this more true than beauty; inner beauty, outer beauty, men and women, young and old, from one culture to another.

Knowing what people do is just part of the story.

Jobs to be Done uncovers the why.

Jobs to be Done

In our quest to understand people's complicated lives, we often use the established business theory of Jobs to be Done (JTBD). It's a way of thinking that challenges you to start with people first and understand the job they're actually trying to achieve through the products and brands they use.

So what's a 'Job to Be Done'? It's not a product or service. It's not an occasion, task or activity. It's the in-between. It's the human motivation, the why behind people's actions. We can observe the situational context and we can see the products or services a person is hiring. But what we can't see are the motivational drivers underneath each product choice in a given situation.

A “job” is what a person hopes to achieve in a given situation by hiring a particular product.

A human lens on the role of brands.
There are people in various situations who have different motives, so they choose different solutions.

Products, Services, & Behaviors

People are multi-faceted. They have different needs and make different choices when in different situations. This is definitely true for beauty and grooming. So many products, so many scenarios -- do they use the same make-up every day? Do they apply it differently for a date? Would they use the same products for hanging out with friends as they do with family, and WHY do they do that?

So many questions.

We break down the anatomy of a 'job' by asking people about various situations they experience and identifying their core motivations for engaging in various behaviors, including using your products.

Who What Where / We asked.

Almost 5,000 people about their perceptions on beauty (inside and out), their general attitudes towards it, as well as their behavior and spend - giving us the ability to view the insights by gender, age and culture.

4,800 People

1,200 Per Market

50% Male

50% Female

4 Generations

Gen Z, Millennials
Gen X & Boomers

Clean teeth 29x / month

Shower or bathe 22x / month

Get a full night sleep 19x / month

Put a thought/care into what you're wearing 15x / month

Apply fragrance/cologne/perfume 14x / month

By capturing thousands of job stories, we're able to quantify the category and its various solutions, Determining that a person engages with 484 beauty and grooming 'solutions' every month (or 16 per day).

Apply sunscreen 12x / month

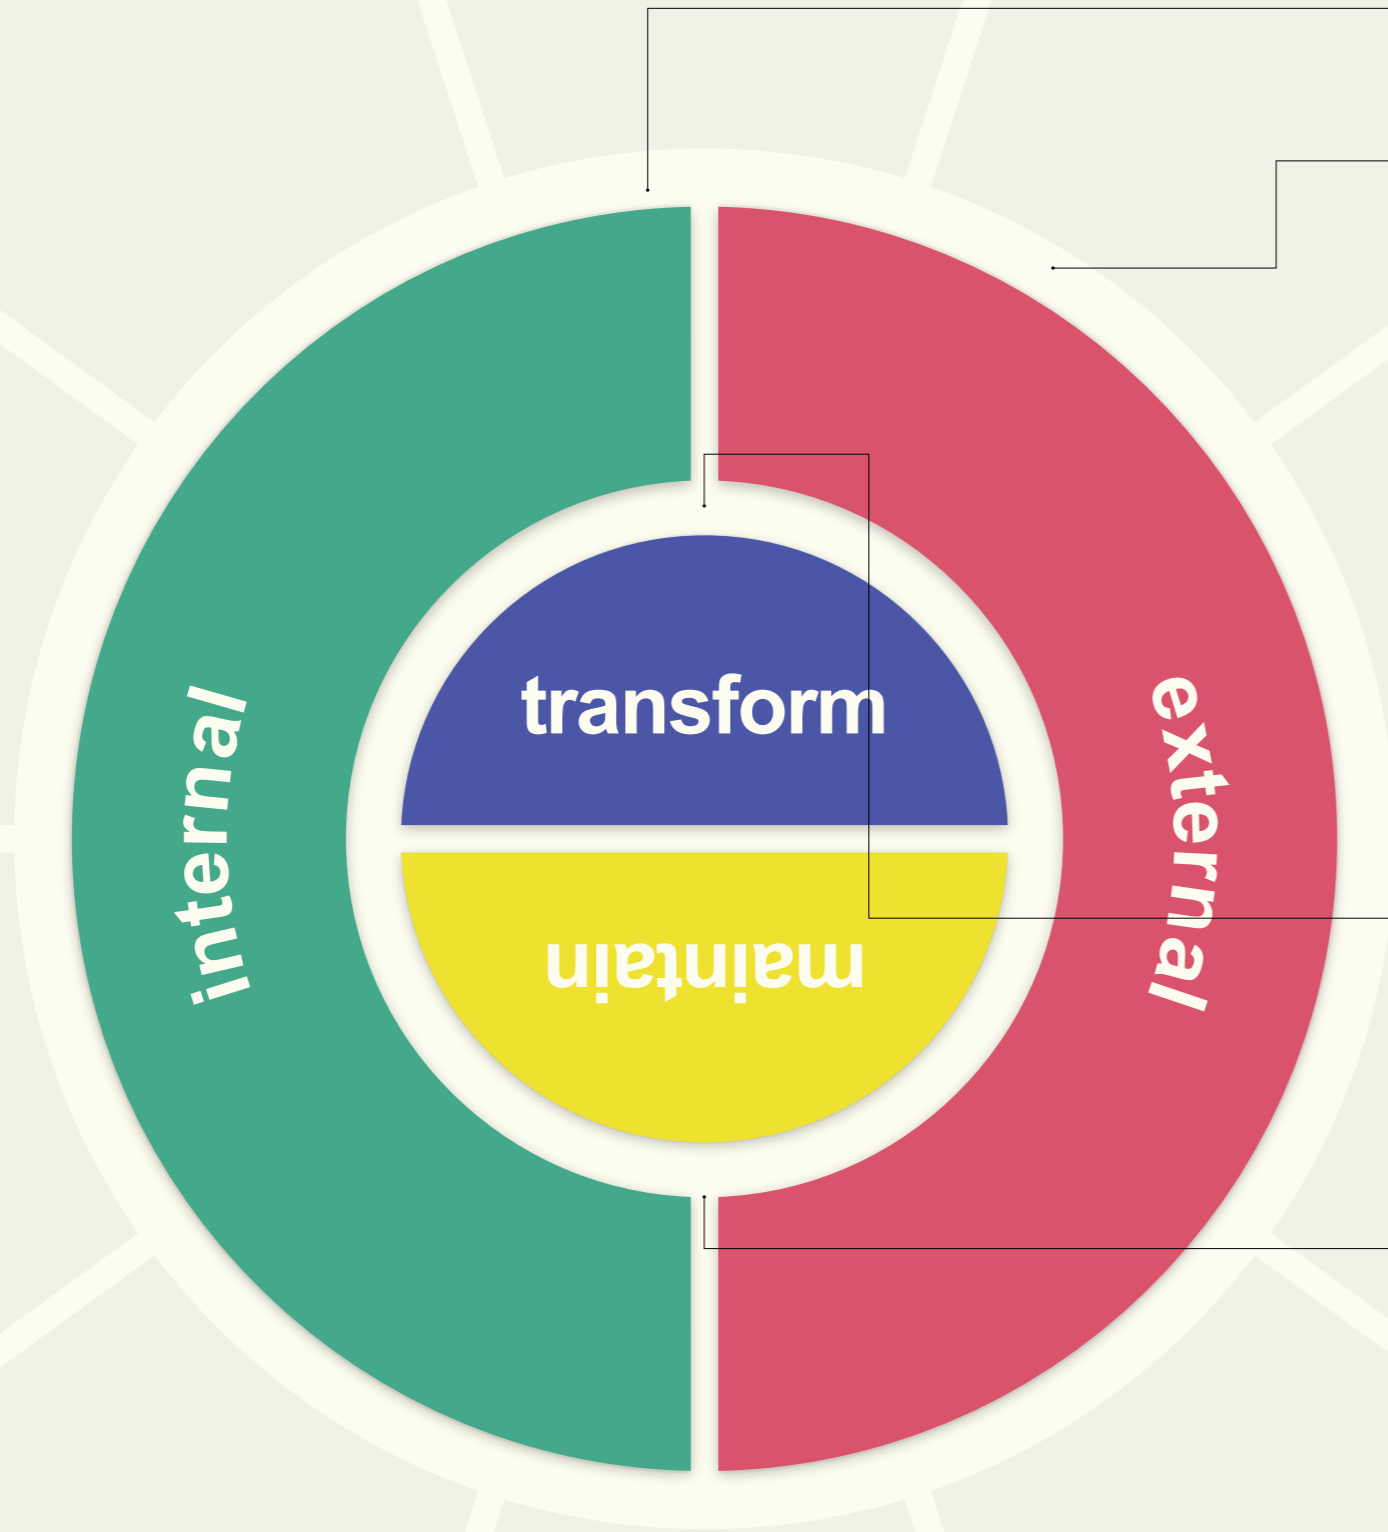

Apply eye make-up 9x / month

Use hair styling tools 6x / month

Buy new clothes 3x / month

Two key dimensions
underly the jobs of beauty.

1

Internal vs. External

Are people driven by their own internal desires and motivations OR are they driven by external pressures, expectations, people, etc.?

Transform vs. Maintain

Are they seeking transformation, change, new experiences OR are they seeking to maintain, create stability or get back to 'normal'?

We identified 10 distinct jobs for which beauty and grooming products can play a role by capturing the context of people's complicated lives and the situations they experience.

The jobs provide a foundation for informing strategies from many perspectives.

When I...

No Particular Situation Over-Indexes

So I...

Decompress & Reset exists across markets, but is strongest in India, where price is also playing a stronger role for this particular job

* Indexed to size of job / ** % of situation or solution that falls into the job

Jobs to Be Done gives you a powerful framework for organizing people's complicated lives, their situations, experiences, choices and, importantly, the why behind those choices.*

A framework that can fuel powerful strategies by engaging brands with people in new and unexpected ways.

THE SOUND
